Utah Symphony Billed Tomorrow On BYU-Community Concert Set

by Margaret Rankers

One of the most heralded events of the Brigham Young University-Community Concert series will be the appearance of the Utah Symphony Orchestra under the baton of Maurice Abravanel in the Joseph Smith auditorium tomorrow at 8:15 p.m. Sharing honors with the symphony will be two brilliant young Utah musicians, pianist Grant Johannesen and composer Leon Dallin.

Mr. Johannesen, a young concert artist of international fame, major musical organizations in the U. S. and broadcast over several radio networks.

Written shortly after he joined the BYU music faculty, the scheduled work is in three movements. The third movement was presented at BYU in August under the direction of Thor Johnson, widely noted as an outstanding American orchestra conductor. Mr. Johnson described the Symphony D as being "vitality American by virtue of its rhythmic pattern, buoyant and original, repre-

BYU Man Is Utah Envoy To Conclave

Ronald Otteson, Fountain Green, has been selected as representative from Utah to the National Association of Manufacturers Convention to be held in New York City beginning Saturday, it was announced by Dr. William F. Edwards, dean of the College of Commerce.

The selection was made by Brigham Young University in cooperation with the Utah Manufacturers Association, which has the responsibility of determining by an impartial method which of the four Utah Colleges will send the student representative to the meet.

RON OTTESON
... Representing Utah.

Mr. Otteson, a senior, has maintained a 2.95 grade-point average during all four years of college work. At the present time he is serving as co-editor of the Banyan and is a member of Blue Key.

He is a graduate of Monona High where he held the positions of class president, yearbook editor and newspaper editor. He was graduated with honors. He attended Snow Junior College for two years where he graduated as valedictorian in 1950. He has received two scholarships in accounting.

The manufacturers' convention will give Mr. Otteson an opportunity to meet leaders of industry from all over the world as well as students of business from the other 47 states. After graduation he plans to continue work toward a CPA in the business field or at some university.

PLEASE SAVE THE UNIVERSE FOR BYU'S SERVICEMEN

A plea for Brigham Young University students to save their copies of the UNIVERSE was issued today by the Campus Branch Servicemen's committee.

Committee men, who have been sending the UNIVERSE to all known servicemen who formerly attended BYU, report that they are unable to collect enough papers to supply their needs. Y students have been getting practically all of the papers at various distribution points, and, while the number of servicemen desiring papers has increased, the number of papers printed has remained the same.

Paul Hill, chairman, announced that committee members will be assigned to each of the girls' and men's dorms to collect papers after they have been read.

Mr. Hill also urged students to inform the committee of any servicemen who might like to receive the paper along with a letter each month.

Campus Debate Tournament Starts Monday

From Dec. 3-6, the Junior Varsity Debate tournament will be held in the Speech Center. All debaters who have not participated in intercollegiate competition are eligible for the tournament.

The issues will be the national debate question: "Resolved, that the Federal government should adopt a permanent program of price and wage control."

Each team will debate both sides of the question, and will enter three rounds.

Further details can be obtained from Dr. J. LaVar Bateman, debate coach, or the debate manager, Spencer Palmer.

Sophomore Wins Oration Award

Geraldine Asplund was awarded a triple combination of the LDS standard works as winner of the Heber J. Grant Oratorical Contest held at devotional last week.

Miss Asplund, a sophomore from Lethbridge, Alberta, Can., presented an oration on "Love." Two members of the Heber J. Grant family, Lucy G. Cannon and Rachel G. Taylor, attended the devotional and presented the award.

The other finalists were Carol Jean Clark, Provo, who spoke on "Inward Peace," and Richard Clark, Orem, who spoke on "A Prophet's Challenge to You."

Inaugurated by President Grant to encourage better public speaking, the contest has been carried on since his death by members of his family in his honor.

Journalism Conference To Be Held Saturday

Roscoe A. Grover, former manager of KSUB, Cedar City, and now a member of the KSL-TV staff, will be the featured speaker at Brigham Young University's 16th annual Intermountain Journalism Conference, Saturday.

The day's schedule will start at 9 a.m. with registration and viewing of exhibits. Openhouses will be held during this time at the University Press, radio station KBYU, the photo labs and the newspaper and yearbook offices.

Keynote session is slated for 10 a.m. with Mr. Grover addressing the conference in the Joseph Smith auditorium.

Shop Talks Slated

Shop talks by visiting experts on practical helps for school publications and careers in journalism will begin at 11 a.m. Subjects to be discussed are: news reporting, principles and practices, campus features and society news, covering the world of sports, producing mimeographed publication, yearbook editing ideas, the advertising and business side of publications, and careers in radio and television.

Tours Listed

Next on the agenda will be a special luncheon for visiting teachers, a meeting of the Utah Association of Journalism Directors, campus tours and journalism movies for students.

From 2:23 p.m. an awards session will be held at which conference officials will award scholarships and book prizes to winners and runners-up in all divisions of the journalism contests in news and editorial writing. Salt Lake newspapers and the BYU journalism department are sponsors for the contest. Only high school students of the Intermountain area may participate.

Discussions Featured

Round table discussions and workshop sessions will be the last feature of the convention. Talks will be given on the following: news writing tips for young reporters, features and columns, principals of editing and makeup, newspaper business problems, paper and yearbook photography clinics, yearbook editing procedures and business problems, school radio workshops, magazine layouts and production, school news in the community newspaper, and multigraphing school publications.

Staff members of the Banyan and UNIVERSE will help officials conduct departmental sessions, tours and demonstrations during the day.

... Share of the Limelight.

GRANT JOHANNESSEN

will be the featured soloist for the concert. He will present two numbers: Vincent D'Indy's Symphony for Orchestra and Piano (on a French mountain air) and the Saint-Saens Concerto No. 4 in C Minor for piano and orchestra.

Of high interest locally is the programmed Symphony in D by Dr. Leon Dallin who will be guest conductor for this composition. A native of Silver City, Utah, Dr. Dallin is at present chairman of the composition department at BYU. He has won national acclaim for his compositions, which have been widely performed by senting the creative spirit found in the best of contemporary American music. A sincere and exciting work." Dr. Dallin is regarded as one of the most promising young composers on the contemporary musical horizon.

The program will also include the Mozart Symphony No. 36 in C Major (Linz).

The 80-piece group, under the direction of Maurice Abravanel, is rapidly becoming one of the top symphonies in the U. S. This year they have fewer imported players, yet they are a finer orchestra than ever before, which speaks well of the caliber of talent in this area.

950 Cougar Fems Cast Ballots For Preference Ball Partners

Over 950 girls balloted last week for their preferred men, announced Maxine Winegar, chairman of the Preference Ball to be held Friday at 9 p.m. in the Joseph Smith ballroom and social hall.

BLOOD DONOR PLEDGES SOAR IN CAMPUS DRIVE

Approximately 480 Brigham Young University students have pledged blood donations to the American Red Cross, according to Capt. Amos L. Bossa, director of the drive for the BYU AFROTC detachment.

The drive to get pledges for blood donations is just beginning and will be at its peak on Jan. 20, the anticipated arrival date of the mobile blood unit. At that time, the unit will also go into other central Utah communities. A blood bank will be established in Salt Lake City.

At present the national blood bank is exhausted because of the Korean situation, and it is hoped that over the nation 300,000 pints of blood a month can be given.

The American Red Cross and BYU AFROTC detachment are cooperating in conducting this drive in Provo as well as on the campus.

Capt. Bossa urges all students who are 18, in good health, and weighing over 110 pounds to make a pledge to donate a pint of blood to this cause.

Forms for those wishing to pledge, are available at the ROTC offices in the Brimhall building.

Sponsored by AWS, the semi-formal dance will give coeds their chance to go to the dance with the man of their choice. Girls may purchase tickets in the J. S. lobby from 9:55 p.m. today through Thursday. Tickets will be $1.25.

Girls also balloted for the most preferred man on campus and the winner, along with the top ten, will be announced at the Preference Ball assembly Thursday. The theme of the dance will also be announced then.

Chairmen of Preference Ball activities are: Barbara Billings, decorations; Jacquie Campbell, publicity; Marolyn Taylor, balloting; Ruby Jones, refreshments; Joyce Galbraith, banquet; Marian Tehbs, intermission; and Louise Sharp, AWS council representative.

Theme for the assembly will be "Medieval Mist Dream," according to Alice Brady, who heads the assembly committee. She is assisted by Shirley Roe, June Miller, Jane Anderson, Naomi Terry, Vonda Christensen, Ruth Mowan, Barbara Miebo, and Bob Morrow.

Features of the assembly will be original orchestrations and musical arrangements by Bruce Riddle, a forty-voice chorus, conducted by John Thompson and original medieval dances. Burnett Ferguson and Norma Pardoe Wright will present a scene from "Barretts of Whimpoole Street." Evelyn Russell and Vern Miller will sing "Wanting You."

CONFERENCE COMMITTEE—Dr. Oliver R. Smith, Janis Simonsen, Prof. Ray Wight, and Keith Smith study contest entries submitted for 16th annual Journalism Conference.

No More Martial Music

One announcement in the faculty bulletin this week will undoubtedly be greeted with enthusiasm by both faculty and students of Brigham Young University. On the first page of the weekly release from the President's Office under the heading "Devotional Exercises" was printed the following: "Hereafter in devotional exercises the organ will play both the prelude and postlude."

The opinion that probably carried the most weight, in having the band recalled from its previously appointed position was that of the Music Department, itself. The music department requested that the heads of other departments propose to their respective Deans that playing of the band be abandoned. The action must have been effective, for the official announcement came following a meeting of the Dean's Council last week.

We commend the council for its action which removed an element of the Tuesday devotional that was definitely not in keeping with the spirit of the occasion.

We had planned on withholding further comment on the testing procedure concerned with Tuesday devotionals, until the plan either succeeded or failed. However, in light of another letter to the editor today, we felt obliged to add a few more words.

It seems reasonable to assume, and we think President Wilkinson agrees, that testing is for the express purpose of "getting" us to assemblies.

Since this is the purpose, we would like to redefine the question, as we see it. We feel that no one has hit it yet, including President Wilkinson in his statement. Argument seems to be centered on the point of whether or not Brigham Young University students should attend devotionals. On this question we are nearly all agreed. But the real question, as it now stands, seems to be, "Will testing in religion increase devotional attendance to the point desired?" We must realize that primarily we are dealing with the 3,000 students who are not coming to devotional, not the ones who are regular attenders.

Among that 3,000 are many who "don't give a hoot," so to speak. That faction is the one with which we should be most concerned. We wonder if the present plan is directed to them?

Many students have considered President Wilkinson's statement as the final and irrevocable word. We do not view it in that a light. We feel that the President and Dean's Council are undoubtedly still giving this serious problem their attention in an effort to make their plans most effective.

The Safety Valve

Why Object to Testing?...

Dear Editor:

I have been quite interested in following the discussion regarding the use of compulsion in devotionals, and would like to get my 2 cents worth in.

First, from the tone of Pres. Wilkinson's statement on the problem, the intent of his action has been misrepresented slightly. This is a fine point, I realize, but sometimes the fine points prick quite hard. The devotionals are just as much a part of the religious education as the religion classes, and as such can have tests given on their content. If a person so desires he can miss half of his religion classes, and if he does so he does not expect that part of the discussion to be eliminated from the tests. Why, then, should there be any objection to testing on the content of the devotionals on the same basis? They are made available for us, and naturally it is desired that we be there, but the testing is not for the express purpose of forcing us to be there.

As to a solution of the problem, a way to increase attendance without compulsion, there lies the difficulty. Compulsion in the way of taking roll is very impractical.

The suggestion of the UNIVERSE, to my way of thinking, is already being carried out, and has been for many years. While different people may differ as to the interest each speaker offers, I sincerely believe that those who obtain the speakers, honestly believe they will be of great general interest to the student body.

Now, here is my suggestion. It seems that the devotionals are not publicized enough. In the last week there has been much publicity, but not in the right general direction. The publicity should come in the Tuesday morning classes, with the instructor or some student announcing the speaker, and urging the students to attend. Teachers seem to do attend devotionals can do much among their friends to increase attendance by encouraging them to attend. Teachers seem to have an attitude of indifference, many ways towards devotionals; at least they don't make an effort to encourage students. Publicity, and the pressure of expressed student body and teacher opinion would do much to increase attendance.

Sincerely,
Carl T. Cox

Went Out Smiling

BYU Lacks School Spirit...

No one can deny that there is a pervading spirit of friendliness at Brigham Young University. In fact, it is probably true that at no other college in the country could one find the same friendly feeling that is so abundant at BYU.

But one cannot help asking, "How about school spirit?" Several students have lately been heard to comment that the Cougars are sadly lacking in this respect.

Some of the best memories of college life probably come from examples of school spirit—the "borrowing" of a rival school's prize trophy before a game, the rush upon the field and show of enthusiasm upon winning the game, and the general high spirit that prevails at school events.

It was this same school spirit that caused Harvard, a few years ago before their big game with Yale, to "lift" the Massachusetts state coat of arms of authority from the capitol building. Every day before the game, the Harvard college paper published a new clue to the police as to where the giant emblem might be found.

College records are full of such pranks to show college spirit, but there are more public, and probably more commendable, ways to show affection for the dear old university. Since a school is seen by outsiders primarily at athletic events, this is where it is judged most. Cougar athletic teams have a reputation for enthusiasm and sportsmanship at their games, but how about the spectators?

A few weeks ago the Cougar football team, at the bottom of the league, roared to a stunning victory over the previously unbeaten Colorado Aggies. The yell leaders were able to draw a few feeble yells from the students, and the rosters left the stadium smiling, but that was the extent of their enthusiasm.

The same day in approximately the same circumstances, UCLA knocked off highly touted California. In the words of the announcer, "garden-of-edens reigned." As soon as the Alma Mater was sung at the close of the game (a practice which was neglected at the BYU-Colorado game), hordes of fans rushed on the field, and for 30 minutes the field was a mass of exuberant rosters giving their victory yells to the tune of marching bands. To repeat after the Colorado upset the BYU rosters went out smiling.

Since the advent of steel goal posts it is no longer advisable to try taking home a piece of them as a souvenir, but it is still desirable to keep alive that old college spirit by a show of enthusiasm.

Perhaps a new student union building, providing a centralized meeting place for students, will give more of a feeling of unity to the Cougars and add a better feeling of enthusiasm to the campus.

Until then, for livelier, better remembered campus days, let's have more of the old college spirit!

LITTLE MAN ON CAMPUS

"Oh, by the way, I got your papers graded last week—if I could just think to bring them..."

The World Today

The Root of Political Corruption...

BY FORD PAULSON

At a recent forensic meet at the University of Utah, representatives of eight western universities met in discussion groups to talk about raising the moral and ethical standards of America.

Each phase of our national life, almost every element of our society, contributes something to the general laxness of morals and ethics. Beginning with adolescents, then on to college groups, and finally to adults, it was found that each category is much in need of improvement.

But more than anything else, government agencies and personnel came under fire. Scandals, some recent, some "cooled off," were brought out in the discussions.

Poses a Problem

It poses quite a problem. How do the people of a democracy bring about a reform in government? The discussions at the U. of U. touched on many possibilities for affecting this reform. The schools, churches, PTA's, etc.—all of these can help.

But in a closer analysis of the situation, who is ultimately responsible for the actions of our government? The people, or course! Government has not made America a great nation. The will of the people has. Government can be no better than the collective will of the people. Neither can it be any worse, if John Q. Citizen is on his toes.

Where the Solution Lies

The solution lies not only in "weeding out" the results of the situation, but in the dishonest public officials, but in a general improvement of the causes, the voting, (and especially, the non-voting) citizen.

Unless John Q. and his friends do something more than criticize—unless we take action against the "sea of troubles" we have gotten ourselves into—there can be no government reform worthy of the name.

The cliched phrase, "Actions speak louder than words," seems quite appropriate here. The American people are expending millions of words in discussions of this deplorable thing. But how many are doing anything about it?

What to do? A fair question.

Follow Christ's Admonition

The carrying out of the advice of Christ to the Jews would, we believe, be the first step: the removal of beams from many eyes—the putting of one's own house in order. No one can see clearly to correct someone else's faults when he has the same faults himself. If we would have honesty in government, then we must be honest.

And then, to paraphrase Thoreau, every man must decide what qualifies he would like to have in his representatives in government, and must bend every effort to secure that kind of representative.

Requires Active Participation

It will require active participation in local, state and federal government. It will mean a certain amount of discomfort: leaving the warm fireside to participate in nominating conventions, primary elections, etc. It will entail group organization to bring pressure to bear on party organizations for the selection of better candidates; letters to newspaper editors; campaigns for better government through existing organizations.

Let the people decide what they want, and then go after it. The will of the people is the only force that can bring about the cleanup that's needed, and affect a permanent change for better ethics and standards in government.

UNIVERSE Meeting Slated Today

UNIVERSE staff meeting today at 4 p.m. in room 24 N. Anyone interested in working on the UNIVERSE is invited to attend, as well as all present staff members.

Collections For Xmas Underway

Collections began yesterday for the annual Brigham Young University drive to collect food, clothing and other items to make Christmas merry for needy families in the Provo area.

Already organization are asking where and how soon they can turn in their quotas of goods. In answer to this question, the collection center will be Room 165 of the Physical Science building. Collection hours will be noon-1 p.m. and 4-5 p.m. Monday through Friday. A councilman from either AMS, AWS or the freshman council will be there at those times to receive the goods.

Christmas Tree Lighted

When an organization feels that it has filled its quota, its representative should contact the AMS, AWS, or freshman council representative who has been assigned to that group. The councilman will verify the filling of the quota and if it has been completely filled, the organization's light on the Christmas tree will be turned on.

Public response to the drive is booming. City folks are praising the school organizations for their work and are calling the school to pledge donations, according to Don Van Slooten, Los Angeles, chairman of the drive.

The "Tribe of Many Feathers," Indian club, will solicit donations to help their quota by performing Indian dances at various local schools.

Mat Dance Admission

A mat dance on Dec. 4 will help swell the fund by charging a can of food or a package of candy instead of the usual ten cent admission price.

Over 50 families were provided with a merry Christmas during the drive last year, and this year promises to be even bigger, according to Mr. Van Slooten.

Dec. 7 is the absolute deadline for turning in goods because everything must be completely packaged and presented to the County Welfare office before Christmas vacation begins. Organizational chairman are requested to submit their entire quota at one time, rather than giving contributions as they are received.

Especially desired items include non-perishable foods, wearable clothing, usable toys and games, and packaged candies and nuts. Students unable to contribute actual goods are asked to contribute a cash donation of at least 50 cents. Money collected in this way will be used just before Christmas to purchase perishable items. AMS and AWS representatives will make necessary repairs on toys, games, and clothing.

National Magazine Features BYU Geology Chapter

The November issue of "Compass," the magazine published by Sigma Gamma Epsilon, national honorary geology fraternity, soon to be released, will be of special interest to local residents and students of Brigham Young University.

According to Dr. George H. Hansen, professor of geology, the November issue of the magazine, which is published 10 times yearly, will be devoted entirely to the activities of the BYU chapter of the fraternity and will include summaries of outstanding papers and theses presented last year. Dr. Harold Bissell, is acting as local editor for this issue.

Curtain Going Up . . .

First Night of 'Blithe Spirit' Spotlights Talented Cast

Opening tonight and continuing through the rest of this week is the second speech department production of the current school year, Noel Coward's improbable farce, "Blithe Spirit."

Performances begin each evening at 8:15 in College Hall and tickets may be obtained at the College Hall box office any time between 3-5 p.m. Price of admission is 75 cents.

The part of the blithe spirit is portrayed by Florence Stocks, Long Beach, Calif. Others in the cast are David Gledhill, Richfield, as Charles the husband; Shirley Roberts, Fort Worth, Texas, as Ruth his wife; Chet Harris, Independence, Mo., and Marjorie Thompson, Aberdeen, Ida., as Dr. and Mrs. Bradman, friends of Charles and Ruth; Lorna Erickson, Richland, Wash., as Madame Arcati the medium; and Jane Anderson, Manti, as Edith the maid. All are veteran performers on the Brigham Young University stage.

The story concerns the hilarious happenings resulting from a seance staged by Madame Arcati for a young British writer seeking background material for a play on spiritualism. What happens, when the spirit of his first wife, is conjured up by the medium and returns for a visit with the writer and his second wife, shouldn't happen to a dog. But it does happen to the writer, and provides an evening of hilarity for the spectators.

According to Prof. Kathryn B. Pardoe, director of the play, the plot comes from the belief that British people have in spiritualism and supernatural beings, even in this modern day and age.

Drive Conducted To Collect Memorial Library Volumes

An intensive drive reaching faculty members of all universities and educational institutions in the state of Utah is being conducted in an effort to secure books and publications for the Howard Wayne Driggs Memorial Library at the Branch Agricultural College in Cedar City. Prof. Ralph A. Britsch of the English department is chairman of the drive on the BYU campus.

Idea Originated

Idea for the library originated when members of the Utah Conference on Higher Education voted to establish a memorial to Howard Wayne Driggs. Dr. Driggs, a son of Howard R. Driggs, nationally known writer and civic leader, was well-known locally as an educator. He was on the regular faculty of BYU several years ago, at which time he was offered and accepted the position of director of the BAC.

Dr. Driggs died suddenly last summer and members of the conference, which consists of representatives from all Utah schools, appointed a committee to formulate a memorial to him.

Memorial Selected

The committee, under the direction of N. Blaine Winters of the State Department of Education, decided the memorial should be a section in the BAC library as almost all material there was destroyed by fire in December, 1948. An effort is being made to regain, or possibly even surpass, the original contents of the library. The Driggs Memorial campaign will aid greatly.

Dr. Britsch has sent several letters to faculty members and has received some response to the request. It is hoped that several hundred books can be sent to the Memorial Library from BYU.

Changes in Scheduling Announced by Perry

Scheduling hours for campus facilities will be 10 a.m. noon and 2-4 p.m. until further announcement, according to Leland Perry, director of Buildings and Grounds.

The change was made to accommodate more students who need to schedule campus buildings for their organizations, Mr. Perry said.

THREE-IN-A-ROW—Kathy Brown and Barbara Chadwick, Tau chapter, receive LDS talent trophy from Elaine Leavitt.

Tau, Gamma LDS Chapters Awarded Talent Trophies

Tau Chapter, headed by Barbara Chadwick, Salt Lake City, topped first prize for the third straight year in the girls' division of the annual Lambda Delta Sigma Talent Contest, and won permanent possession of the prize cup.

Gamma Chapter, directed by Levi Oveson, St. Johns, Ariz., won the cup in the men's division.

Tau's skit, "Remember the Cup," took the form of a chapter meeting interspersed with musical numbers by Connie Decker, Snowflake, Ariz.; Jean Stock, Fish Haven, Ida.; Rosie Nelson and Kathy Brown, Phoenix, Ariz.; Peggy Wood, Ogden, and Beverly Robinson, Salt Lake City; Miss Brown and Deah Tonks, Victor, Ida., were co-chairmen of the skit, while art work was done by Helen Palmer, Pasa, Calif.

Upsilon Is Runner-up

Runner-up for the girls' cup was Upsilon chapter, headed by Betty Hayes, Wilmington, Del.

Theme of Gamma's skit was a radio broadcast of an unusual United Nations meeting—unusual in that a stranger was there, representing no nation and giving no name, but giving some astounding advice for world peace to a group of bewildered men.

Participants Named

Participants were Mr. Oveson, Reed L. Tyler, Pocatello, Ida.; Dick Halliday, Glendale, Calif.; Wallace Bruce, Salt Lake City; Lorin Todd, Susanville, Calif.; and Evan Hansen, Monroeville, Pa. Following the broadcast, the skit was closed with a vocal solo, "How Beautiful Upon the Mountains," by Mr. Oveson.

Eight of the campus chapters of the fraternity participated in the show, presenting musical, dramatic and other talent.

Fellowship Offers Announced In England, South America

Medical Science Fellowships for work in medical investigation, including tuberculosis, have been announced by the National Research Council, according to Dr. Asahel D. Woodruff, dean of the Graduate School.

Fellowships are available only to those who possess an M.D. or Ph.D. degree, and who are not over 30 years of age. Winners would receive from $3000 to $5000 per year and may plan to enter any field of medicine or public health, Dr. Woodruff said.

Bulletins containing further information are available in the offices of the Graduate School.

Four American students, either men or women, will be selected for fellowships to study at Oxford and Cambridge Universities in England during 1952-1953.

The announcement was made by the American Trustees of the Charles and Julia Henry Fund.

Recent college graduates and students who will be graduating from American colleges in the spring of 1952 are eligible to apply for the awards. The fellowships will provide a grant of $1,820.00 to each fellow selected. Applications for the fellowships must be submitted on or before January 15, 1952, to the Office of the Secretary of Yale University or to the Secretary of the Corporation of Harvard University.

Graduate student fellowships to South American countries are available to Y students, according to Dr. Harold W. Lee, chairman of the modern language department and director of foreign students.

To qualify, graduate students should have initiated their graduate study, have a satisfactory knowledge of the language of the country, good health, moral character, and intellectual ability.

All expenses will be paid by the participating governments. All applications should be in the hands of the International Educational Programs Branch, U. S. Office of Education, Federal Security Agency, Washington 25, D. C., by Jan. 25, 1952.

Elden Beck Named VeeP Of National Society

BYU Professor D Elden Beck of the zoology and entomology department, has been appointed vice president in charge of the Western States division of the American Society of Professional Biologists, according to executive secretary Norman C. Leifer.

With headquarters on the University of Maryland campus, the society's aim is to familiarize the public with the professional status of biologists.

Concert Band To Perform Monday Night

The concert band directed by Norman Hunt, will appear in the Joseph Smith auditorium at 8:15 p.m. Monday in its first concert of the season.

Professor Hunt, former variety band director, returned to Brigham Young University last May after studying for a year at the Paris Conservatoire National de Musique in France. He was a member of the exclusive class of Andre Lafosse, world-famous trombone teacher.

The program will feature several modern composers and a traditional Bach selection.

Male Must Go Through ... Not Rain, Snow, Sleet, Hail Slows Cupid On the Trail

by Dorothy Bartels

June may be the month of brides as far as tradition is concerned, but November and December seem to run a pretty close second at Brigham Young University. The "Spirit of the Y" doesn't become dampened by rain or snow, judging from the new crop of pins, diamonds, and wedding rings floating around the campus.

Wanda Fluckiger and Darlene Bunker certainly had plenty to be thankful for last Thursday. They celebrated Thanksgiving a day early by changing their names. Wanda became Mrs. Grant Hulet in an Idaho Falls Temple ceremony, while Darlene married Richard Greenland in the Salt Lake Temple.

Temple Ceremonies

The Salt Lake Temple will be a solemn place for BYU weddings during the Christmas holidays. Paul Dahl will claim Shirley Johnson as his bride there on Dec. 27. Dec. 26 will be the wedding day of Catherine Hatch, popular secretarial training instructor, and Douglas Thompson, instructor at the University of Utah. Lorry Rytting and Gloria Wallis are also planning to be married during the Christmas season.

Byrdie Armbruster and Grant Thomas became man and wife on Nov. 9.

Ruth Weseman's smile these days matches the sparking diamond on her third finger, left hand. Boyd Smith of Salt Lake City is the lucky man and they're planning a January wedding.

January Wedding

January will be the time when Genevieve Steele changes her name to Mrs. Lee R. Broderick.

Donna Mae Feulner is wearing a Delta Phi pin that formerly belonged to Clarence Hulet and they're planning a spring wedding.

Barbara Billings and Joyce Sorenson recently received diamonds from their missionaries. Barbara's came from Bryce Baker in the Eastern States Mission and Joyce received hers from Robert Graham.

Jane Anderson is certainly proud of that fraternity pin she's wearing these days. It came from Wilbur Braithwaite, who is attending school in Michigan.

Another Happy Pair

Betty Martini is wearing a gorgeous diamond from senior class prexy Lee Stratford. They're planning a June wedding.

Pat Brown is wearing a diamond from Fred Marlowe, who is stationed with the Air Force in Las Vegas, but no definite wedding date has been set.

Jessie Clouse's diamond came from Farrell Brown, but they haven't set a definite date either.

BYU Senior Named To College Board Of Nat'l Magazine

Miss Betty Ann Green, Spanish Fork, has been chosen to represent Brigham Young University as a member of Mademoiselle's national College Board.

Miss Green, now serving as Tuesday editor of the UNIVERSE, is one of 700 students who competed with applicants from colleges all over the country to win a place on the Board, according to Mademoiselle.

As a College Board member, she will report to Mademoiselle on college life and the college scene. She will complete three assignments that will help her explore her interests and abilities in writing, editing, fashion or art, in competition for one of twenty Guest Editorships to be awarded by the magazine next June.

'Bambi' Billed Thursday on Film Series

"Bambi," the eighth film in the current film classic series presented by the Audio-Visual Aids department, will be shown in the Smith auditorium on Thursday at 7 p.m.

It is the first and sometimes considered the best of Walt Disney's full-length pictures, utilizing abstract art both for effect and beauty. Some sequences in the film, such as the beginning scene, and the passage showing the coming of spring, are notable examples in artistic technique.

The story is an adaptation of Felix Salten's best seller by the same name, which has become a childhood classic.

Tricks of the Trade ...

Girls Now Like Their Dating Sweet Caveman Tactics Take Back Seat

by Allan Halverson

The art of "dating" has become quite complex in this modern era, as was evidenced by a recent survey taken on the BYU campus.

In the Neanderthal Age it was routine to club 'em down and drag 'em away. But after a few bumps on the noggin, women suddenly discovered that it was strictly a question of "brain over brawn." Thus a once simple procedure has now evolved into a most abstract science.

"Eve" was the first rib to pull the fleece over man's blinkers. And since Adam, man, it seems, has been going around in a circle like a dog with tin cans tied to its tail.

But don't be dismayed, fellows. It is not necessary to bone up on Freud in order to land a date with a smorgasbord (a girl with everything).

In fact you don't even have to know her, according to 40 per cent of all the girls interviewed. They believe it proper for a BYU boy to whom they have never been formally introduced, to ask for a date. Of course the other 60 per cent regard this as taboo. (But so was holding hands in the late nineties.)

A transition is obviously taking place in modern courting methods. (Now days the girl wants the boy around her third finger left hand.) But the ultimate hasn't arrived as yet emphasized the average BYU coed, as statistics show that only 27 per cent of the young ladies interrogated were in favor of changing dating etiquette from boy ask girl to girl ask boy. The remaining 73 per cent still prefer caveman tactics, ... only in a much more romantic and refined sort of way.

Furthermore, females like to operate on their own. The cave-woman didn't have any special agencies or organizations to fall back on. And the typical 1951 BYU model feels that she can subtly succumb to the club of some college Tarzan without the aid of any date bureaus. At least that was the opinion shared by 81 per cent.

"Can't Love Ya, Ya Feets Too Small"

—by Mud—

Ninety per cent of the students that walk into the fieldhouse Saturday night will expect BYU to win hands down. Why? Ask most BYU fans and you'll get an answer along these lines. "BYU's big time now, they won the NIT last year and the conference twice years in a row and three out of the last four. They better win."

Policy prevents me from summing up this notion in the word I had in mind so 'baloney' will have to do. If anyone assumes that a championship team is an annual thing here, he's full of it. This year's team is not of championship caliber. This team is the sort of team that future champions are molded out of.

BYU can win the Skyline Eight, but only if there are several top teams that might cut each other's throats to the extent that BYU will sneak in ahead of the rest. If you have to back a possibly great team, then you'd better shove off to Salt Lake or Laramie, as BYU doesn't fall into that class.

The Cougars may finish as low as fifth in the conference but will probably provide much more excitement than last year's champs, who won many games by rather large margins. The caliber of ball may not be as outstanding but when you lose the league's best rebounder and the second leading scorer, you've got to expect it.

Those Lucky Juniors

It might be well to note that only seniors have seen a BYU team finish lower than first and that was three years ago. Incidentally, there is only one senior on this season's squad, Jerry Romney. I saw his weight listed somewhere the other day at 180. Don't believe it. I don't believe he weighs 180 with a blonde on his lap.

Jerry has run the gamut from Springfield to the Utah fieldhouse and twice has traveled to Kansas City and the Western NCAA playoffs as well as the NIT last year. His home town is listed as Albuquerque and Salt Lake alternately but after that football game a couple of weeks ago, Salt Lake will do just fine.

But to get to the point, I hope Jerry, or any of the guys for that matter, doesn't have to go through a season of half-filled fieldhouses because BYU fans can't stomach a non-championship team. The 1951 team left a tremendous shoe to be filled and this year's club can't fill it, so don't look for it.

There are many who claim that this year will be the real test for Stan Watts. They claim that BYU has had the material the past couple of years and that anyone could have won. My personal contention is that Stan turned a good team into a great team last year and that very few coaches could have done as well.

If, sometime during the coming season, I hear anyone holding Watts responsible for the Fumas not being on top, I will assume that they belong in the house on the hill. It might be a good idea if they were banded up and placed directly under the scoreboard in order to protect the floor against further craters.

I have been constantly amazed by the pre-season predictions for the conference race by the lack of mention of Utah. So far, everything has been all Wyoming, Wyoming will win this and Wyoming will be such and such in the nation.

I should like to remind these experts that Mr. Smith and Mr. Bates and Mr. Shrum, all University of Utah students, might make these fellows look ridiculous. In these three we have: 1, the best pivot man in the conference, 2, the best center in the conference, and 3, the best guard in the conference. You're probably right boys, I forgot that they lost Glenn Duggins.

Bless Those Thoughtful Men

I was thoroughly overjoyed the other day when I read that the NCAA has decided that they had better step in and clean up the college football mess. Personally, I'm delighted that they could take time out from collecting percentages on televised college games to even consider the matter.

With their typical mature reasoning, they have decided that all bowl games must cease. They seem to go on the adage that if one has a sore finger, they only logical thing to do is cut off the arm. It's logical to any lunatic that to knock off the New Year's day classics would solve everything.

Another wonderful idea, of the NCAA, is to limit practice to 20 workouts or to the particular season. That's nice. Certainly anybody can get in shape in 20 workouts. Why not cut it to 10 and make dead sure everybody gets hurt. It's not bad though; look at all the medical school graduates we would need.

Another NCAA cure all is to require athletes to maintain academic standing and make satisfactory progress toward a degree. In other words, the athletes should have to go to school like the rest of the peons enrolled. Seems to me we're getting a little tough, aren't we?

The council also approved a statement that difficulties have arisen from undue pressure to win, especially on coaches. Nice of 'em to get around to it. I'm sure glad they told me, I never would have guessed in a million years.

This is like throwing food in the back yard for a few months and then announcing to their gas-masked wearing neighbors that there is a lot of garbage around somewhere.

These ten years behind the times idiots represent the body of men (?) that has let these conditions go unnoticed for the last 10 years. Take a bow, men, but watch out which way.

Cougars Prep For Weekend Arizona Game

With only four days left, the Brigham Young University Cougars, 1951-52 edition, are working hard in preparation for their opening game against the University of Arizona Saturday night.

Arizona, Border conference champs last year, are fairly well rated and should give the Cougars, last year's Skyline champs, a good battle. In the western NCAA play-offs in Kansas City last March, the Wildcats lost a thriller to Kansas State 61-59.

Filling Mel's Shoes

Much of the success of the Cougars this year will depend on how well the vacant shoes of Mel Hutchins will be filled. However, if Boyd Jarman, a 6-3 junior, can develop his shooting to a point that approaches his passing, the Cats may be in for another good season.

At present, Jarman is having some trouble with one of his knees but although he reinjured it in a scrimmage a week ago, he is expected to be ready for the Arizona game.

Back from last year's starting five are: Jerry Romney, a senior, and Harold Christensen, a senior, and Richey, both juniors. Romney is the only senior on the squad and is expected to be a steady influence on the rest of the players.

Other Top Prospects

Other of Watts' top players are Tom Karren, Dean Larsen, Leon Heaps, and Loren Dunn. Karren is a good rebounder and starred with BY high several years ago, while Dean Larsen, also a sophomore, from Mesa, Ariz., is considered another fine prospect.

Another possible answer to the vexing center problem may be Nick Mateljan, a freshman from Redlands, Calif. Mateljan was a great scorer in high school. He stands 6-4 and hooks well with either hand, an asset that may have him doing a lot of playing before the season is over.

Dan "Mud" Clay

Redskins Drop Bobcats Twice In Hoop Series

The University of Utah Redskins opened their hoop season last weekend with victories over the Montana State Bobcats at Salt Lake City.

In the first game, the Utes barely managed to edge out the visitors 54-51 while Saturday night the Utes were able to breathe more easily as they checked in with a 52-46 win.

The Redskins are led by three all-conference candidates. They are Kent Bates, a 6-7 junior; Paul Shrum, a 6-2 senior; and Glen Smith, 6-4, also a senior and co-holder of the Skyline single game scoring mark of 39 points.

Tide Out As Cougars Top Waves 20-0; Ollie Stars

Ray Oliverson donned the Cougar uniform for the last time Saturday night and, partly because of this, BYU trimmed Pepperdine 20-0 before a homecoming crowd at the El Comodoro stadium in Los Angeles.

As a result of the victory, the Cougars climaxed one of the most successful seasons in recent years. The Cats finished with a 6-31 log and a .667 percentage. It is a far cry from the team of three years ago when BYU lost 11 straight.

As a unit, the Cougar defensive team was outstanding holding Pepperdine to only 34 yards on the ground while the offensive team ran up 242 yards.

During the first half, the Cougars and the Waves put on great defensive shows before the visitors managed to score on an interception with only five seconds left.

The first tally came with the Waves deep in their own territory. Gary Faxman grabbed a Pepperdine pass, raced 27 yards to pay dirt, and the Cougars led 6-0 at intermission.

BYU pushed over their second score in the third period on a sustained 58 yard march. Ray Oliverson carried the ball over and Bob Karpozit made the count 13-0.

Again in the fourth quarter the Cougars marched 60 yards for the final tally of the game. The drive was carried in 10 plays with Oliverson doing much of the ball hugging. Ollie again scored for the Cats, Karpozit again converted, and Brigham Young ended a good season with a 20-0 triumph.

Pioneers Beat Rams 21-6 In League Contest

Good breaks and the playing of alert defensive football gave the Denver Pioneers a 21-6 win over the Colorado Aggies in a traditional Thanksgiving Day game at Denver last Thursday.

Winning the game placed Denver third in Skyline standings and dropped the Aggies into fourth place.

All three of Denver's touchdowns resulted from the top-notch performance of its defensive team. The first score was set up by an intercepted pass, the second by an Aggie fumble and the third was scored on a blocked punt.

Both teams fielded strong defensive lines and tight pass defenses, but it was Denver's ability to capitalize on the breaks that gave them the game.

The consolation touchdown was scored by the Aggies in the final minutes, but it was nullified by a holding penalty.

Denver touchdowns were scored by Lilley, Catlard, and Chrisman. Scoring for the Aggies was Mickelson.

The Aggies, having complained that they met most of the teams this year determined to avenge a loss suffered in the previous game, ran into the Pioneers bouncing back from a 14-7 loss to Utah State.

Scoreboard Hits Floor, Officials Hit Ceiling

by Dan Clay

Last Wednesday afternoon at 5:50, the new fieldhouse scoreboard, which had been lowered for adjustments, crashed to the new basketball floor from a height of about 20 feet.

Horror stricken bystanders, recovering from the initial blast, rushed to the edge of the gaping hole in time to see the scoreboard disappear from view into the horrendous abyss.

The scoreboard, which indicates scoring information from four sides, registered a fifth score when, minutes after the disappearance, oil began to gush forth into the fieldhouse. Soon after, however, the scoreboard returned atop the gushing fluid.

The Devil, No Less

One stouthearted individual ventured to the edge of the widening hole and reported a man running frantically around with a pitchfork in hand. It was also reported that the seismograph at Fordham University recorded an occurrence in the Rocky Mountain area.

There was some damage done to the scoreboard, but coach Stan Watts said that it could be repaired without sending it back to the factory. It is expected that both the floor and the scoreboard will be repaired in time for the opening game with Arizona.

Watts said that the board was still operating after the descent and that the damage was not too great. Some of the zero hour observers substantiated this by pointing out that the letters T I L T flashed violently across all four sides. It also registered 23 free falls.

Sad Situation

The lights rolled about the floor like so many glass marbles, the frame was twisted beyond recognition, and the braces haven't been seen since, but school officials said that they were sure it would be repaired without much delay, assuming, of course, the parts can be found.

The scoreboard fell when the cable that was being used to haul it up snapped. Upon interviewing some of the older people, still active at BYU, it was learned that this same cable was used to lift a bell to the top of Education building, the year it was built.

Since records only go back to 1850, it cannot be ascertained just exactly when the cable was made, but it has been noted that since the cable split, unusual vines have been sprouting up around the fieldhouse in the area of the break.

Probably Won't Work

In order to prevent further trouble of this sort, it has been suggested that volunteers have luminous numbers painted across their backs. At one minute intervals, the lights would be turned out and the human numbers would dance across the floor, thus denoting the score.

However, this might interrupt the progress of the game slightly so a luminous ball would have to be used. This and other suggestions are awaiting the decision of the athletic board.

Skyline Teams In Hoop Tilts This Weekend

All of last year's Skyline teams will swing into action this weekend as basketball takes over the local sports scene. Only New Mexico and Montana, the new league entries, will not see action.

The much improved Utah State Farmers will engage in a home and home two game set with Idaho State, Friday and Saturday. The teams meet at Logan and Pocatello, respectively.

Another highlight this weekend will be a series between the Utah Redskins and the University of Washington at Salt Lake.

AWS Sponsors Mat Dance

Associated Women Students, sponsors of the Preference Ball activities this week, will also sponsor today's mat dance in the Social Hall at 5 p.m.

Ardean Watt's orchestra will provide the music. Admission is 10 cents.

Minerals Given To Geologists

Dr. L. N. Ellsworth, Salt Lake City dentist and former Brigham Young University student, recently presented the BYU geology department with a valuable 265-specimen mineral collection representing gatherings from all mines of Utah and the intermountain west, Alaska, and the Philippines.

Stated Dr. Ellsworth in making the presentation, "I feel that the inspiration from BYU has been a big factor in my life, and I want to do something for the school."

Dr. George H. Hansen, head of the geology department of BYU, accepted the gift, valued at approximately $20,000, and a geology pick as a symbol of the new BYU Geology Pick club. Dr. Ellsworth was named president; Dr. Hansen, vice president; and Clyde Davis, secretary-treasurer.

President Ernest L. Wilkinson expressed his gratitude for the outstanding collection.

Peterson Joined Soon by Wife

Dean A. Peterson, associate professor of accounting and business administration at Brigham Young University, who is now serving in Iran as the economic administrator for the group of Utah educators under the Point Four program, will be joined soon by his wife and four children.

Mrs. Peterson, the daughter of Mrs. Myrtle Bailey, housemother of Knight Hall, and her children will make two stops en route to Iran; one in New York, the other in Paris.

Five other members of the BYU group now in Iran include Dr. Reed H. Bradford, Douglas Brown, Max J. Berryessa, Glen S. Gagon, and Troy P. Walker.

BANYAN LETTER CONTEST DATED

Announcement of the annual Banyan Sales Letter contest was made today by Ted Money, business manager.

A free copy of the Brigham Young University yearbook will be awarded the author of the letter judged most effective as a sales device for the Banyan campaign this year.

Schoolwide competition is encouraged according to Mr. Money. The contest closes at 5 p.m. on December 7, and the winning letter will be printed in the UNIVERSE as soon as it is selected.

Anyone interested in competing can get further information at the Banyan office.

Press Club Changes Meet to Thursday

Plans for the Journalism Conference to be held at Brigham Young University, Saturday, will be discussed by members of the Press Club Thursday at 7:30 p.m. at the home of Prof. Ray Wight, 911 N. 2 E.

Members will serve as ushers at the conference.

Television will be the form of entertainment for the evening. All students interested in journalism and radio are invited to attend.

Alumni Messenger Features Seventh Inauguration Rites

The November '51 Messenger, a Brigham Young University alumni publication, contains the complete report of the inauguration of Ernest L. Wilkinson as seventh president of BYU.

The entire issue, edited by Edwin Butterworth, public relations director, is devoted to the inaugural activities.

The magazine size is eight and one-half by 11 inches, and has 36 pages. Included are 14 pictures of speakers, informal shots of the president, and photos of important events.

There were 8,500 copies printed. Copies were sent to the parents of all Y students, Bishops, stake presidents, General Authorities, and the General Boards of the church received the publication. Also on the mailing list were several educational societies and representatives from universities that attended the services. Faculty and university employees were presented Messengers, along with a group of personal friends listed by the president. All extras were given to the Alumni Association for distribution.

Ensemble To Play At Dedication

Chosen to represent Brigham Young University, a brass ensemble will perform at 7:15 p.m. Thursday, at the dedication of the new Mount Pleasant gymnasium.

Representatives have been invited from every university in Utah. The brass ensemble was chosen from music groups in the BYU music department.

Original music written in the sixteenth, seventeenth, and eighteenth centuries for brass instruments will be featured on the program. Composers included in the program will be John Pezel and John Adson.
